

Valkyrie

Written by Serenity

Tuesday, 08 January 2008 17:56 -

Two simple words describe this fierce female fighter: grace and beauty.

None in the realms of Nodeka have the fluid motion and pure body control in combat like the females of this profession. Unlike their male-warrior counterparts, the aylakia is a beautiful sight in combat. Observing a aylakia in combat is akin to watching a dancer on stage. Smooth, calculated attacks, each one with incredible accuracy, each one stronger than the last. Blinding, dizzying movement back and forth, avoiding strike after strike from their increasingly frustrated opponent. This is what the aylakia strives for. Power over all others through their beauty, not only in their physical appearance, but in their combat. There are some who say this is the downfall of these great fighters, that their egos will one day take over their fighter's edge. Those are usually the same who find themselves on the razor end of the aylakia's blade, hearing their calls for the afterlife to accept yet another unfortunate soul.