

The defenders of the holy light. The lo-fent gives his life to the most holy of gods, and spends his life bringing the light to the wicked. The belief system of the lo-fent is based on one simple, basic premise: cleanse the world of evil by unleashing the true power of the light. These holy warriors believe the only true way to drive the darkness from the land is to blind it with the brilliance of the gods and then extinguish it with the fires that light brings. They spend their existence learning various spells and combat techniques that will bring them more in touch with and in greater control of their god given power, with the constant hope that this new knowledge will be the one thing that will lead them to victory. The lo-fent will not rest until evil and darkness have been driven from the realm of Nodeka forever. They know so long as there is breath in their lungs and blood in their veins, the hands of the gods will push them ever forward, guiding their blade to the heart of whatever evil they face.

While their fanatical devotion to the way of the light can sometimes cause them to seem overconfident, even pompous, do not mistake this for a weakness. The lo-fent has every reason to be confident in battle, as would any warrior given the blessings of the gods of light.