Long ago, a particular clan of the Elven population was cast out of their homeland and forced to live underground. This population has grown into what is known as the Drow race. While living underground for generations, the Drow acquired many advanced racial powers, the most outstanding is their night vision coupled with a strong resistance to any form of magic. While the Drow are still descendants of the same breed as Elves, they gain massive quickness bonuses, as well as enhanced dexterity, agility, and strength. Not quite as fast as their Elven counterparts, the Drow are, however, stronger. The Drow lineage turns first towards Drow of the Blue Blood and finally, Dark Elf or Veldruk. It is said that Drow have acquired cunning that even the Elves do not understand.
