

Jador

Written by Serenity

Tuesday, 08 January 2008 02:28 - Last Updated Tuesday, 08 January 2008 20:30

The jador are beings endowed with a magical, light based energy. This light outlines their entire bodies and also gives them some distinct advantages and disadvantages.

Due to the jador's magical, light based energy they have enhanced strength and do exceptionally enhanced damage in combat. The jador also possess great wisdom. Some argue their wisdom is what has allowed them to empower themselves with their light based energy.

However, the jador's lifeline is tied to their light energy. Because of this, even the slightest damage to their light-based outline on their physical body is greatly magnified. This is perhaps the jador's greatest weakness - they do not excel well in combat without the aid of someone (or something) protecting them from incoming damage.

Through the jador's light based energy, they can seek out individuals from afar and identify their current state (using the 'affects' command on targets outside of their current room).

Last, but not least, due to their magnified wisdom, the jador adapt to combat quickly. With this they can sometimes prevent incoming attacks altogether. This power, however, is limited to being only effective on those the jador is attacking. Incoming attacks from combatants the jador is not directly attacking cannot be blocked by the jadors combat methods.