Although seemingly useless, pixies have much more power than most races, other than the elves, would believe. The only race that exceeds the quickness of the Weretiger, pixies will be hit in battle by only the master arksmen.

What pixies lack in strength, they make up in force, as their explosive attacks would reflect. Flight is a natural ability for all pixies, as well as being able to emit a light of holiness from their body. Being small, pixies can conceal themselves from others quite easily, and protect their bodies from some attempts of paralysis or stun. The downside of the pixie is that they are quite frail and not considered hearty by any means. Later in life, pixies can transform into Sylphs, and then perhaps venture into the life of the Sprite.
